“ Jeff was a gentle giant that never met a stranger.

I transferred to SAHS in sophomore year and he took to me like we had been friends for years. Hell, I probably wouldn't have graduated high school without that idiot beating on my window until I woke up, forcing me into the pick-up, and driving me to school. My mom would remind me of that all the time.

We made so many stories together. We ran all over the east coast of Florida. Skipping school to go to Bike Week in Daytona, senior vacation in the Keys for a week, deep sea fishing, going to Miami.... a lot, exchange students, Christmas eve(ish) football game in Tampa, grad night at Disney, Hooters in Jax, BBQ, underage drinking (absolutely his idea! maybe...), beach volleyball, carpet cleaning, Adventure Landing, family dinners, bowling, just driving around looking for stuff to do and talking about life..... So many stories inside of stories... I'd like to point out that thankfully we didn't have social media back then!

In every story, even when he was the one to get us in trouble, which wasn't often, he would still find a way to get us out of it. He had a way of diffusing almost any situation. Mostly because he had such a calm way of talking to people but if that didn't work, let's face it, the dude was a giant.

We didn't talk as much after I went into the Army but we still touched base every now and then. When you got to know this guy, you couldn't unknow him. He sticks in your life forever and it's OK because your life is better having known him. I'm a better human because of Jeff.

He was 100% a brother to me. Bubba, you are missed!

“ Jeff was there for me through one of the hardest times of my life and he made me feel safe. He has always been there to come see my new baby and love on him. Such a good guy and husband. I remember the last time me and Walter saw him was at the splash pad in Palatka with the whole family and we had soo much fun. Jeff you will truely be missed and I just thank GOD that you married a strong beautiful woman that will be able to take care of your kids and live on through you! 🥹
